X-ray facility at Trauma Care Centre in city upgraded

By Mohan Kayaka

Mysuru, Dec. 27- Enhancing Mysuru's reputation as a healthcare hub, particularly in Government Hospitals, the Trauma Care Centre has embraced cutting-edge technology with the acquisition of state-of-the-art Digital Radiography X-ray machines. This move positions the Trauma Care Centre in direct competition with private hospitals, showcasing a commitment to advanced medical facilities.

The newly installed X-ray machines are situated in the Orthopaedic wing of the Trauma Care facility, housed on the campus of PKTB-CD (Princess Krishnajammanni Tuberculosis and Chest Diseases Hospital) Sanatorium on KRS Road.

This strategic placement ensures accessibility and convenience for patients seeking specialised care, further solidifying Mysuru's status as a healthcare destination at the forefront of technological innovation.

Earlier, only Computer Radiology X-ray machines were being used in the Orthopaedic Department and now Digital Radiography X-ray machines that represent modern and advanced imaging technology are being used in medical diagnostics.

Unlike traditional X-ray systems that use film to capture images, digital radiography utilises electronic detectors to convert X-ray photons into digital signals. This digital format allows for immediate image acquisition, enhanced image quality and efficient storage and transmission of medical images.

The Digital Radiography X-ray machine installed at Trauma Care Centre on KRS Road in city.

Instant and efficient

Speaking to Star of Mysore, Head of the Radiology Department at Trauma Care Centre Dr. C.N. Pradeep Kumar said that digital radiography provides instant image acquisition, eliminating the need for film development. This leads to quicker diagnosis and treatment decisions.

Both Computer Radiology and Digital Radiography are digital imaging technologies, the key distinctions lie in their image capture methods, processing time, image quality and flexibility. Digital Radiography systems generally offer advantages in terms of efficiency, image quality and versatility.

"Digital images can be enhanced for better visibility of anatomical structures. This flexibility aids healthcare professionals in making more accurate diagnoses. The digital format allows for easy storage, retrieval and transmission of medical images. This facilitates seamless integration with electronic health records and enables healthcare professionals to access patient information quickly," he added.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Respect for humankind is a fundamental teaching in all religions worldwide. Regardless of one's own or another's religious tradition, community affiliation, or whether they belong to a friendly or opposing group, every individual deserves respect.

This highlights the inherent dignity and worth of every person, which is a natural birthright, irrespective of community membership.

Humanity is the cornerstone of all religions, emphasizing unconditional love for all. Religion, as a way of life and belief system, connects humanity with spirituality and often moral values. It is a foundational institution in society, universally present across cultures. The relationship between religion and humanity has always been intimate, as most religious practices involve human interactions and a connection with the divine.

Understanding religion is crucial when studying cross-cultural differences and similarities. Religion ideally fulfills multiple functions: it provides meaning to life, reinforces social unity and stability, acts as an agent of social control, promotes psychological and physical well-being, and motivates people to work towards positive social change. In its purest form, religion fosters humanity among its followers, promoting human unity.

However, when religion is distorted, it can become a source of pride and division, with one group using it to assert superiority over others.

The concept of humanity is rooted in our relationship with God and with each other. For instance, the Bhagavad Gita teaches the importance of selfless service for the welfare of the world, stating that by devotion to such work, one attains the supreme goal of life.

The Holy Quran emphasises that nature serves humanity, God's vice-regents on earth, and that everything in creation has a purpose, including humanity's role in obeying God's will.

Similarly, the Bible teaches that humans were created out of God's love and are called to share that love, reflecting His image through caring for the world and each other.

The essence of religion lies in its ability to provide a sense of purpose to individuals and communities alike.

Prison replaces dogs with guard geese

Rio: A prison in the Brazilian State of Santa Cantarina recently replaced its guard dogs with a flock of geese that supposedly make loud noises when they detect strange noises, like someone trying to escape.

Human guardians and guard dogs are usually the norm, but some prisons use some unlikely alternatives. For example, several prisons in Brazil have replaced guard dogs with geese, which they say are not only just as effective, if not more so, but also cheaper to maintain. Apparently, geese have very good hearing and will make loud noises whenever they detect strange noises, thus alerting the human guards.

"Night is very quiet. Even during the day it is a very silent place. The space favours this type of security in the case of the geese," Prison Director Marcos Roberto de Souza said and added that the flock of "geese guards" patrols a space between the prison's inner fence and its main outer wall.

VOICE OF THE READER

From US with love

Sir,

I have always enjoyed reading KBG's Abracadabra as I have been reading Star of Mysore since 1978. Your Star of Mysore of 26th December was really superb with contributions from Maj. Gen. S.G. Vombatkere (retd.) — three days I had to read repeatedly his 'Cosmic Dance' to understand and appreciate as I am from social science background which I always say is nothing but common sense which we generally lack!

I am reminded of my mother-in-law, who at the age of 92, used to eagerly wait in the evening for SOM. Now it is me online sitting in Atlanta, US.

Interesting that my granddaughter, who is just four, is fond of using the expression 'Abracadabra' and I was teasing Shalini that it may be the impact of MOF!

Parliament security breach case

Manoranjan's family grilled for 10 hours over discrepancies

Mysuru, Dec. 27 (BLU&BCT)-
Manoranjan
The Delhi Police Special Cell team which came to the Vijayanagar Second Stage residence of D. Manoranjan yesterday grilled his parents from 9.15 am to 7 pm. Manoranjan is one of the prime accused in the Dec. 13 Parliament security breach case.

The 10-hour grilling was done by two officers and one translator and according to sources, the family was taken to Manoranjan's room on the second floor of the house owned by his father Devarajegowda. While the ground floor of the house is rented out, the family lives on the first floor while Manoranjan has a separate space on the second floor.

During the interrogation, the team focused on establishing missing links by questioning Devarajegowda, mother Shylaja, and sister inside Manoranjan's room. The Delhi Police team has been stationed in Mysuru since Dec. 18, diligently verifying and cross-verifying statements provided by the family.

Deciphering discrepancies

According to sources, the investigators probed the family members about the discrepancies in their statements during the first, second, and third levels of interrogation. This marked the fourth round of questioning for the family since the Parliament incident. While the Mysuru Police are assisting the team with logistical support, they are not directly involved in the investigation.

After concluding the interrogation at 7 pm, the investigators informed the family that it was the final round of questioning and assured that they would not return for further investigations. However, similar assurances had been given in previous sessions, indicating uncertainty regarding the conclusion of the investigation.

Two friends questioned

Sources also revealed that the investigative team interrogated two friends of Manoranjan in Vidyaranyapuram and Chamundipuram. During their travels around the city, the team opted for bikes over police vehicles. Manoranjan's friends were questioned in Vidyaranyapuram, providing information relevant to the suspect.

Furthermore, in New Delhi, Manoranjan disclosed details about the hotel where his friend Sagar Sharma stayed upon arriving in Mysuru. The team visited the hotel to verify ledger entries, address proof, dates of stay, and the duration of the visit.

The investigative team in Mysuru is actively conducting operations based on the information provided by Manoranjan, who is presently in Police custody in Delhi for investigative purposes. It is anticipated that additional friends of Manoranjan may be subject to interrogation as the investigation progresses.

Woman questioned

Following entries in Manoranjan's diary and a thorough examination of Call Details Records (CDR), the Delhi Police investigators identified a young woman who had been in contact with Manoranjan.

Sources indicate that the woman is a resident of Mysuru, and the investigative team questioned her regarding her association with Manoranjan. Upon scrutinising the call records, the Police discovered that the woman had been in constant communication with Manoranjan leading up to the Parliament security breach incident.

During the questioning, the team inquired whether Manoranjan had shared any information about the Parliament plan, specifically regarding their intentions to scare or harm the Members of Parliament by detonating smoke canisters, sources added.

Traditional practice triggers tense moments in Nanjangud

DSS workers, devotees of Srikanteshwara Swamy exchange words over 'Andhakasura Vadhe' ritual; Police intervene

Nanjangud, Dec. 27 (OSR)- Tension prevailed for sometime when Dalit Sangharsha Samithi (DSS) activists objected to the 'Andhakasura Vadhe' ritual organised by Sri Srikanteshwara Swamy Temple authorities causing displeasure among devotees last evening.

As per the tradition, a rangoli depicting demon king Mahishasura was created near Rakshasa Mantapa Circle in the Temple Town, accompanied by a banner of the demon king erected as part of the 'Andhakasura Vadhe'.

The Utsava Murthis of Srikanteshwara Swamy and Parvathi Devi are then carried in a procession on a palanquin. The carriers of the palanquin perform a ritual, offering prayers to the rangoli and the banner of Mahishasura, before deliberately stomping on them as they proceed in the procession.

Before the ritual, DSS workers approached the Executive Officer (EO) of the Temple, Jagadish Kumar, requesting the suspension of the 'Andhakasura Vadhe' ritual, citing disrespect to Mahishasura, whom they regard as their king and expressing hurt feelings. EO Kumar consulted the Temple priests, including Agamika Nagachandra Dixit and other ritwikas, who opposed halting the tradition, fearing potential bad omens.

Ultimately, EO Kumar yielded to the advice of the priests and allowed the continuation of the tradition. When DSS workers learned about the procession, they gathered at Rakshasa Mantapa Circle. A large number of devotees of Srikanteshwara Swamy had gathered there and they chanted slogans even as DSS workers hailed Mahishasura as their king and chanted slogans in his support. This, however, led to confrontation.

Verbal exchanges escalated and some DSS workers attempted to pour water on the Mahishasura rangoli, further heightening the situation. The Police intervened, using mild force to disperse the crowd, while the ritwikas carried out the procession and observed the ritual without further incident.

Upset with EO Kumar's decision, DSS workers accused him of betrayal for not keeping his promise to suspend the ritual. They lodged a complaint with the Police against some youths for creating a disturbance. In retaliation, devotees also staged a spontaneous protest against DSS workers, accusing them of insulting the tradition.

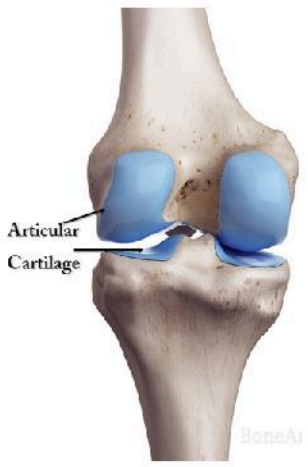
HEALTH TALK

Navigating the maze of CARTILAGE

Understanding, Preventing and Treating Damage

By Dr. Umesha Chowdaiah,
Consultant Orthopaedics,
Narayana Hospital, Mysuru

Dr. Umesha



As an Orthopaedic doctor, I often find myself emphasising the crucial role that cartilage plays in our joint health. While it may not be in the spotlight like bones or muscles, cartilage is the unsung hero that enables smooth movement and flexibility in our joints.

Cartilage plays a crucial role in supporting our movements and maintaining joint health. Let us explore deeper into the world of cartilage — its functions, vulnerabilities and the pathways to recovery.

Understanding Cartilage

Cartilage serves various functions in human body, acting as a cushion between joints, holding bones together and forming integral parts like the external ears. Remarkably, in children, it composes the ends of long bones, transitioning into bone over time. However, unlike other tissues, cartilage lacks a blood supply, making its healing process slower than that of other tissues.

Types of Cartilage

There are three main types of cartilage:

1. Elastic Cartilage: Found in the ears and some parts of the nose, it is the most springy and supple type.

2. Fibro Cartilage: Tough and able to withstand heavy weights, it resides between spinal discs, vertebrae and bones of the hip and pelvis.

3. Hyaline Cartilage: Springy, tough and elastic, it is present between ribs, around the windpipe and in joint spaces.

All three types are susceptible to damage, whether from a slipped disk or a hard impact on the ear.

Articular Cartilage Damage

When cartilage in a joint is damaged, it leads to articular cartilage damage, causing severe pain, inflammation and limitations in movement. Knee pain is particularly common, affecting one-third of adults aged over 45.

Symptoms and Causes

Patients with articular cartilage damage may experience inflammation, stiffness and range limitations. Causes include direct blows, wear and tear and lack of movement. High-impact sports and prolonged stress on joints contribute to the risk of damage.

Diagnosis

Distinguishing cartilage damage from other injuries can be challenging, but modern tests such as Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) and Arthroscopy aid in accurate diagnosis.

Treatment Options

1. Conservative Treatment: Non-surgical approaches, including exercises, NSAIDs, supplements and orthobiologics, may suffice for some patients.

2. Surgery: When conservative methods fall short, surgical interventions like debridement, marrow stimulation, mosaicplasty and autologous chondrocyte implantation may be considered based on factors like age, activity level and lesion size.

Complications

Untreated cartilage damage can lead to joint immobility and worsening pain, with small defects progressing to osteoarthritis over time.

Exercises

A physical therapist can recommend exercises to strengthen muscles around the joint, reducing pressure on damaged areas. While exercise offers various benefits, it may not lead to cartilage regeneration.

In conclusion, understanding the intricacies of cartilage empowers us to safeguard our joints. By adopting preventive measures, seeking early diagnosis and exploring appropriate treatments, we can navigate the maze of cartilage and pave the way to joint longevity.

Pratap Simmha's ire over CM's personal attack on him

Pratap Simmha

Mysuru, Dec. 27 (BLU&BCT)- Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simmha has called upon Chief Minister Siddaramaiah to engage in constructive politics centred on development rather than resorting to personal attacks.

Addressing reporters in Hunsur during the Hanuma Jayanti celebrations yesterday, Simmha challenged Siddaramaiah to compare their respective contributions to Mysuru and Kodagu, highlighting his 10-year tenure as MP versus Siddaramaiah's 5 years as CM.

He urged the CM to prove his impact on Mysuru's development, emphasising that Siddaramaiah could have done more for his home Constituency instead of engaging in petty politics.

Refuting the Congress' allegations that his brother, residing in Hassan district, was involved in cutting down trees, Simmha explained that the increased personal attacks followed the Parliament security breach incident. He criticised the Congress for attempting to portray him as a terrorist, noting the unfortunate generalisation of Muslims in the process.

In response to the social media post by the Congress implicating his brother in tree theft, Simmha clarified that his brother has been involved in ginger cultivation for the past 15 years, with the lease on the land where the trees were cut starting on Jan. 1, 2024.

He asserted that there is no connection between his brother and the tree-felling incident, emphasising that his brother is being unfairly targeted due to the upcoming Lok Sabha elections.

Simmha invited the Congress-led government to investigate the allegations of tree felling and highlighted that his brother's name is not in the FIR filed by the Congress Government's officers.

The MP defended his family's farming livelihood, challenging the Congress to validate any wrongdoing through their own Police Department.

Expressing frustration at the continuous personal attacks, he stressed that his politics have always been focused on development rather than caste affiliations. He criticised Siddaramaiah for resorting to hate politics and underscored his commitment to development-oriented governance.

Predicting Siddaramaiah's potential political repercussions if Congress loses in the Mysuru-Kodagu Constituency, Pratap Simmha urged the CM to prioritise development over personal attacks, stating that the ongoing assaults are a result of Siddaramaiah's insecurity.

Finally, he questioned why, among 28 MPs in the State, he was specifically targeted, attributing it to his commitment to development politics rather than caste-based strategies.

Congress workers protest against Pratap Simmha's remarks on CM

High drama on Hunsur Road as activists set fire to tyres; FIR against MP

Mysuru, Dec. 27 (UNI&OSR)- High drama unfolded on Hunsur Road here yesterday evening as Congress party members staged a protest against MP Pratap Simmha, who allegedly made derogatory remarks about CM Siddaramaiah. The demonstrators gathered on the road leading to the MP's office, chanting slogans against Simmha.

Led by Rural Congress President Dr. B.J. Vijayakumar, the protesters blocked the road, burned tyres and even ignited petrol bombs. Despite heavy Police presence, tensions escalated as protesters were prepared to use petrol bombs, with many carrying cans and bottles filled with petrol.

Recognising the severity of the situation, the Police increased security. As a tyre on Hunsur Road was set on fire, the Police promptly extinguished it, preventing further damage. They also confiscated petrol bottles, cans and the containers that were brought in. Fortunately, the Police managed to contain the fire before it could spread to nearby vehicles, including bikes and four-wheelers parked in the vicinity.

The Congress workers were demanding the immediate arrest of Pratap Simmha, accusing him of "provoking communal discord." Despite the intervention of Devaraja ACP Shanthamallappa, the protesters insisted on seeing the FIR copy promised by the Police.

DCP (Law and Order) M. Muthuraj had to step in and even then, the Congress workers persisted, sitting and sleeping on the road to express their frustration, demanding prompt registration of the FIR.

FIR booked against MP

An FIR has been filed against BJP MP Pratap Simmha with the Mysuru city Police for allegedly insulting Karnataka Chief Minister Siddaramaiah by calling him 'Somaari Sidda' (Lazy Sidda) in an interaction with media during Hanuma Jayanti in Hunsur.

The FIR was registered based on a complaint by Rural Congress President Dr. B.J. Vijayakumar. The BJP MP was booked under Sections 504 and 153 of the Indian Penal Code.

"With this statement (Somaari Sidda) and also by making similar baseless allegations constantly, accusing the CM of caste politics, Pratap Simmha is hampering the charisma of CM," the complaint copy stated.

Dr. Vijayakumar also complained about Simmha challenging Siddaramaiah to hold a public debate on his contributions to Mysuru city and district. The Congress leader further complained that Simmha made baseless allegations against Siddaramaiah of wreaking hatred between different communities.

"Pratap Simmha is also trying to provoke communal chaos between Hindu and Muslim communities, and hamper public peace ahead of Lok Sabha election," he alleged.

X-ray facility at Trauma Centre

"These machines are widely used in various medical settings, including hospitals, clinics and imaging centres. Their adoption has significantly advanced diagnostic capabilities and has become a standard in modern medical imaging practice, Dr. Pradeep Kumar noted.

CT Scan machine

As of the current status, the Trauma Care Centre boasts two state-of-the-art Digital Radiography X-ray machines, contributing to advanced medical imaging capabilities. Additionally, there are plans for further enhancement with the imminent installation of a CT Scan machine within the premises.

An important development to note is the relocation of the Orthopaedic Department from K.R. Hospital to the Trauma Care Centre. This strategic move consolidates comprehensive orthopaedic services under one roof, streamlining patient care. The Trauma Care Centre now offers a spectrum of treatments, including Outpatient Department (OPD) services, X-ray diagnostics, physiotherapy and specialised care for various orthopaedic ailments.

"Instant digital copies of X-rays will soon be provided as an alternative to issuing hard copies. These digital copies will be conveniently emailed to patients, eliminating the necessity for payment associated with hard copy prints. Patients who do not have e-mail accounts can request and receive hard copies as needed," Dr. Pradeep Kumar noted.

Tumakuru resident designs new logo

Situated within the premises of PKTB-CD (Princess Krishnajammanni Tuberculosis and Chest Diseases Hospital) Sanatorium on KRS Road, the Trauma Care Centre pays homage to the historical contributions of the Wadiyar rulers through a HD logo, prominently featured on each X-ray copy. On the right side, the emblem of Mysore Medical College and Research Institute (MMC&RI), marked with the number 100, signifies the commemoration of its centenary year.

Swamy, the X-ray technician at the Trauma Care Centre, said that the logo, featuring Princess Krishnajammanni's photo, was artistically crafted by Mohammad Ghouse of Chikkanayakanahalli in Tumakuru when he came to the hospital for treatment. Remarkably, the HD logo maintains its clarity even when the X-ray digital copy is zoomed in, ensuring its discernibility and recognition.

Operating from 9 am to 5 pm, the Electronic Delivery of Citizen Services (EDCS) will disseminate information to beneficiaries via SMS during the camps. In Mysuru, Zilla Panchayat CEO K.M. Gayathri and Women and Child Welfare Department Deputy Director Basavaraju are supervising the camps, personally inspecting proceedings at selected Gram Panchayats.

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah has directed officials to address technical and banking issues to enhance the efficiency of the Gruha Lakshmi scheme. Launched by the Congress Government, the scheme aims to empower and support women by providing a monthly direct cash transfer of Rs 2,000 to their bank accounts.

As of July 19, 2023, approximately 1.17 crore women heads of households have enrolled in the Gruha Lakshmi scheme. However, challenges remain, with around 2.5 lakh beneficiaries yet to link their Aadhaar to bank accounts and approximately 70,000 inactive accounts facing a similar issue.

To streamline the process and facilitate Aadhaar linkage for a smoother cash transfer experience, these special camps will involve local service centres, bank representatives and Panchayat Development Officers.

The participation of local post-payment bank representatives, bank officials and other stakeholders is expected to contribute to the success of these camps. Efforts will be made to facilitate the Aadhaar linkage process and open new bank accounts and in preparation for the camps, training sessions for camp officials were also conducted.

A year-end centenary tribute to a beloved son of Mysore

By June Gaur

June Gaur

As the year draws to a close, tributes pour in marking the centenary of a beloved son of Mysore, T. S. Satyan, born here in our city, on the 18th of December, 1923.

Satyan was fortunate to have been part of an iconic first generation of photo-journalists and to have lived a rich and fulfilling life in exciting times. Reams have been written about his work and its importance as a visual testimony to those times. But the archives of photo-journalism will tell us much less than we ourselves know of him as a person and a friend.

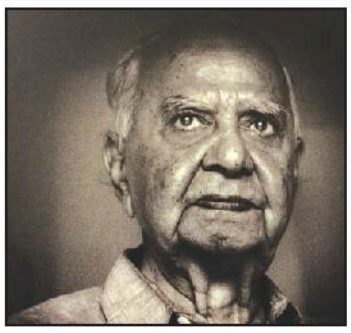
Satyan himself never quite forgot the excitement, or the precariousness, of his struggle for recognition in those fledgling years.

To recap a little: Shortly after Independence, a market had opened up for Indian photo-features in the West and Satyan was looking for an opportunity there. It came soon enough with the Mahamastakabhisheka at Shravanabelagola. Fingers crossed, he sent off his pictures with a small daub of haldi at the corners of the auspicious envelope.

Soon after, LIFE magazine commissioned the young Satyan to do a photo-story on Acharya Vinoba Bhave as he walked from village to village in Gujarat. For three days, he kept pace with India's walking saint. On the fourth, he clicked the acharya as he stepped onto a row of stones in a patch of moonlight.

Satyan shared these and other memories in a documentary by the legendary film-maker, M.S. Sathyu. The year was 1994 and he had just turned seventy-one. A staggering volume of work spanning five decades was behind him. The timing was right for a deep dive into the stories, the intimate moments and emotions that lay behind each milestone.

Picture the setting: Satyan's modest study in his Saraswathipuram home. The small room can barely accommodate lights and camera. The burly Sathyu is hunched into a chair in a corner from where he calls directions.



T.S. Satyan
(Pic. by Shamanth Patil)

Seated within hand-shaking distance of Satyan, my job is to cue him in from a script we have prepared in advance.

There is enchantment in the air as the two masters, close friends since their school days at Banumaiah's, work in tandem. In the hushed room, an emotional Satyan relives the past half century, oblivious to time and the VHS tapes piling up.

The hours tick away and day turns to night. The producer is tearing his hair. One of the lights has fused. The Bangalore-based crew will have to stay overnight in Mysore now. But Sathyu, patience on a monument, schools the room — "when an artist is talking about his struggle, don't rush him."

We all know how keen Satyan was to leave his work in one place, so that future generations could see Life as it was then. He would allow nothing to distract him from this resolution, not even a bypass surgery and reduced mobility.

He was very particular about answering correspondence promptly and never missed his daily chakkar to the Saraswathipuram Post Office. The written word was a great comfort to him and the internet became increasingly indispensable as arthritis forced him to cut down on his walks around Manasagangothri.

He was constantly pushing the boundaries for himself and others. Supported by his wife Ratna, he would sort through carefully stored boxes of pictures and negatives. In 1998, when he turned 75, a retrospective of his work was held in important cities around the country and people got to see something of his impressive oeuvre. An unknown photographer at the Bangalore venue clicked a poignant picture of a tired Satyan asleep on a narrow bench, resting alongside some of his famous pictures.

A few years later, a hard-cover collection, In Love with Life: A Journey through Life in Photographs "an indulgent celebration of the ordinary," grew out of this retrospective.

Satyan's pictures will never be dated; his celebrated black and white pictures defy slotting by age. An exhibition of his photographs has just concluded at the ultra-modern Museum of Art & Photography in Bangalore that opened only this year. The universal and timeless nature of his work ensures that T.S. Satyan will not "go gentle into that good night"; he will not fade away.

Play 'Kaakanakote'

to be staged on Dec. 30 and 31 at Vanaranga

Mysuru, Dec. 27- Masti Venkatesha Iyengar's contribution for Kannada literature has been enormous. His power of getting into the dialects of various geographies of Karnataka, keeping the language simple for the lay man to understand, but yet ensure the impact of the message is not diluted, is a strength which every writer will not have.

One of his most popular works is 'Kaakanakote', a play about the tribes of H.D. Kote, who are under extinction now. The forest in and around the Heggadadevana Kote of Mysuru district is called Kakana Kote.

The story of the play revolves around the man Kaka (Kacha) and the tribe Kurubas. At the time of the play, the tribe was at large and had a rich ethical culture. During the reign of Ranadhira Kanteerava of Mysore, a dispute arose between the tribe and the local administrator Heggade. The dispute was due to excess levy of tax. This was solved by Kaka, who knew the king well.

This play, written in early 20th century, becomes relevant even today. Heggade tries to destroy the tribal culture and evacuate them from the forest. The play attains new light when the nature is at the verge of destruction and the new generation becoming culture-less.

The play 'Kaakanakote' will be staged by the students of Rangashikshana Kendra, Mysuru, on Dec. 30 and 31 at Vanaranga in Rangayana premises at 6.30 pm on both days.

Rangayana Mysuru will be transforming to Kaakanakote. The musical play has been directed by senior artiste S. Ramanatha, music composition by Anush Shetty and Stage design by H.K. Dwarakanath.

WORD OF THE DAY

Visceral

Pronunciation: VISS-uh-rul.
Meaning: Visceral is an adjective that describes something as coming from or triggering an instinctive emotional (as opposed to intellectual) response. In medical contexts it means "of or related to internal organs of body."
Origin: Apologies in advance for the offal puns, but we have a gut feeling it's going to be hard to resist serving them up for this particular word. After all, the English language is home to a bellyful of words that refer literally to body parts and figuratively to emotions associated with them. If something has ever tickled your funny bone or touched your heart, we trust you've got our back on this. The adjective visceral is another prime example. Something described as visceral has to do with the viscera — that is, the internal organs of the body (especially the heart, liver, or intestines). Yet even in the early years of its use, visceral often described emotional feeling, as the physical viscera were considered the seats of human passion, sentiment, et al. Though we no longer ascribe anger to, say, the spleen, we still use visceral to describe things that are felt deeply, as if in our physical bodies. In medical contexts the word still describes things related to our actual viscera.

THE ODD WORD

Vacuity

Emptiness.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Vicious circle

Meaning: An argument or definition that begs the question; A chain of events in which the response to one difficulty creates a new problem that aggravates the original difficulty, called also vicious cycle; A self-perpetuating process which returns to its starting point with no improvement from when it began.
Origin: Vicious circle originally referred to a circular argument, that is, an argument that assumes the conclusion as one of its premises. That sense was first documented around the end of the 18th century. Approximately 50 years later, vicious circle acquired the now more common "chain of events" sense as people began to think of the circle as a metaphorical circle rather than a circular argument. Today, vicious cycle is a common variant for the "chain of events" sense. Vicious spiral, in which the ill effects are cumulative as well as self-aggravating, puts in an occasional appearance as well.
A vicious circle was the name given by 18th century logicians for a fallacious proof in this form: A depends on B; B depends on C; C depends on A
This was alluded to in Edition 3 of The Encyclopedia Britannica, in 1792:
"He runs into what is termed by logicians a vicious circle."
